

Contents

Stavros Assimakopoulos

1 Introduction — 1

I Pragmatics and philosophy

Jacques Moeschler

2 Back to negative particulars: A truth-conditional pragmatic account — 9

Richard Vallée

3 Colour adjectives, compositionality, and true utterances — 33

Kepa Korta

4 Talk about the future — 53

Etsuko Oishi

5 Illocutionary effects, presupposition, and implicature — 71

II Pragmatics and cognition

Anne Reboul

6 Is implicit communication a way to escape epistemic vigilance? — 91

Thanh Nyan

7 The structure of utterance meaning: how did it come about? — 113

Márta Szücs and Anna Babarczy

8 The role of Theory of Mind, grammatical competence and metapragmatic awareness in irony comprehension — 129

III Pragmatics and linguistic analysis

Enikő Németh T.

9 Theoretical and methodological issues in the research into implicit arguments in Hungarian — 151

Thorstein Fretheim

- 10 The Pragmatics of ‘Yes’ and ‘No’ — 175

Michael Chiou

- 11 Do not say that for which you lack adequate evidence: On the interpretation of future tense in Modern Greek — 201

Sonja Müller

- 12 Redundancy effects in discourse: On the modal particle-combinations ‘halt eben’ and ‘eben halt’ in German — 225

IV Conversation analysis

George O’Neal

- 13 The pragmatics of intelligible pronunciation: Preemptive and reactive segmental repair in English as a lingua franca interactions in Japan — 257

Zsuzsanna Németh

- 14 The interactional functions of four repair operations in Hungarian — 279

Index — 311